THREATEN JAIL FOR MERCHANTS TRUST LEADERS

Counsel for Wrecked Company Accuses Two Directors of Conspiracy.
NEW YORK, May 23.—Sensational charges were made today of conspiracy on the part of two members of the Merchants Trust Company to wreck the institution, causing its collapse yesterday, and it was said that the meeting of the directors called today might result in criminal proceedings.

It is charged that these two men, to further their ends, went among Wall street financiers, spreading reports of the company's insolvency, and that these reports alone were responsible for the fall.

William H. Kilburn, attorney for the company, said today: "This trouble was brought about by two men in the company who, in order to achieve their selfish ends, have spread untrue and malicious reports about the Merchants Trust Company. The company is perfectly solvent."

Criticism of Kilburn.
"While it is true that the company has a number of remarkable securities, still the present situation could have been averted had those reports not been circulated."

There has been a great deal of criticism in banking circles of State Superintendent of Banking H. B. Kilburn, since his statement in which he admitted that he has known of the condition of the Merchants Trust Company for two years, but suppressed the facts in the hope of selling the company's bad loans and unmarketable securities.

The crash was not unexpected. For two weeks Wall street had been almost selling as the previous days had distributed the capital.

Will Affect Thousands.
The embarrassment of the Merchants Trust Company will affect thousands of people in the city and throughout the country.

Japs Cut Railroad to Make Vladivostok a SECOND PORT

Tokio reports That the Czar's Last Base on the Pacific Has Been Isolated.

TOKIO, May 23.—Officials here that the Russian fleet has gained the Pacific by a dash through the Russian Channel, north of Japan. An important conference has been held at the house of the Premier as a result.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 23.—Reports here state that Vladivostok has been cut off by the destruction of the Russian railway line. Japanese invasion in force is now reported to be going on.

PHANHAI, May 23.—Apparently true, it is charged that these two men, to further their ends, went among Wall street financiers, spreading reports of the company's insolvency, and that these reports alone were responsible for the fall.

LONDON, May 24.—All dispatches to day indicate extreme activity in land and sea in the Russo-Japanese conflict, one that Vladivostok is cut off another is that Japanese fleet has gained the Pacific by a dash through a channel north of Japan, a third is that the Russian fleet has been isolated just north of Korea, may have been driven north of where it does was supposed to have been, at Formosa.

Another report which may, or may not, have direct bearing on the situation is the New Yorking, to the effect that the Japanese fleet has cut off the Russian fleet under what circumstances is not limited.

The most important news of the day, naval and military men say, is that which credits to Japanese a successful dash from Formosa into the Pacific and that which under what circumstances is not limited.

This means probably, they state, that Tokyo, under active from Tokyo has permitted Vladivostok to be cut off from the Pacific and that Vladivostok, meanwhile having invested that city.

There will now be a repetition of the Port of Vladivostok. The Japanese navy has been reported active but what steps he can take to relieve. Splendid Spectacle as Plumed Templars of Massachusetts and Rhode Island Marched Through the Street Led by Herald in Full Armor.

A bugle blast, loud and clear, that rose above the rousing cheers from thousands of throats, signalled the start of the imposing parade promptly at 11 o'clock today of the 8,000 Knights Templars who are marching through the streets of Boston as the opening feature of the 100th anniversary celebration of the founding of the order in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The pageant—one of the most magnificent that has ever taken place in this city of great demonstrations—elicited tremendous applause as it moved from Commonwealth avenue along Arlington street, down Beacon, wound around the corner of the Public Garden and proceeded along Charles street.

At the head of the paraders, riding side by side, were Albert Horton, the Grand Herald, and Deputy Superintendent of Police Hanson, the latter a Sir Knight, both of whom occupied the same conspicuous positions at the time of the fraternal convalesce in this city, ten years ago.

Marched Knight Headed Line.
Behind the two leaders came the grand officers on horseback. From their charges came black and white plumes. The horses danced and reared with delight. And all along the way the knights of the order, in their full armor, marched in perfect order.

TO TEST LIQUOR LAW IN MAINE

ALFRED, Me., May 24.—The most interesting liquor case ever tried in the Maine courts was taken up in the Supreme Court to-day before Judge Peabody. It was the case of Harry S. Sawyer, the American Express agent at Saco, charged with being a common seller. The complaint is based on the transportation of liquor shipped from outside the State as a C. O. D. package and the collection of the money for it.

Ingram found the door of his flat locked when he arrived home, but rapped and demanded admittance. The door was pulled open suddenly, and Ingram felt a strong hand clutched at his throat. He struggled

PARDON FOR CONSUMPTIVE

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Dr. John F. Tubbs, serving a five-year sentence at Fort Leavenworth for counterfeiting, has been pardoned by the President. Last year an epidemic of pneumonia broke out in the penitentiary and Dr. Tubbs was assigned to professional work among the sick convicts. Several of the patients also had contracted malaria through the mosquitoes which swarmed on them in the close quarters of the prison. Dr. Tubbs contracted the disease and here has but a short time to live.

STRANGE GIRL LEAPS INTO SEA

LANN. May 21—A well-read young woman, whose identity has been carefully concealed, made a sensational attempt at suicide by jumping into the sea from Rock Rock. She was walking along the shore apparently just for pleasure, when she was suddenly overcome by a fit of nerves and then jumped.

A man nearby saw her jump for death and called out to her. He tried to help her in the water, and after a struggle managed to bring her ashore. The young woman was taken to a house on Ocean Avenue, where she was treated by a doctor. The parents of the house near the physician's office were called in to see the young woman. She was taken to a hospital, where she was treated by a doctor. The woman met the young man who rescued her, and they were married. The man was an irresponsible girl who had met with a disappointment. She will recover.

If Crockett loses his suit, he is prepared to go on the stage. He claims his property in the river and the river itself, and he claims to be the only one who can no longer perform his duty.

lawyers, John A. Dunt and May, represented the estate of Seth B. Poole, who died in 1884, alleging that Henry Collamer was a provision dealer in Brooklyn guilty of maladministration and a misstatement of the funds of the estate. It was appealed from the report of Master George B. Hays, who was appointing Collamer as the receiver of the estate and also guardian of Poole's daughter. It is alleged that he speculated in the funds of the estate and is 80 years of age. The case will be reported to the full bench of the Supreme Court.

THE LIFE OF GRACE DARBY

CHAPTER VI.

SOME OPINIONS AS TO TAUNTON ASYLUM MANAGEMENT.

IN the sixth chapter of the complete story of Grace Darby's life, told by herself exclusively for readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN, Mrs. Darby, whose escape from the Taunton Asylum and marriage with John Ayles, of Taunton, she has related the circumstances of the four attempts which have marked her life—running away from a family which she says did not treat her well, as a young girl; jumping from a window at Worcester and being unable to get away because of a broken ankle; trying to secure a key to the asylum at Taunton and being detected; and finally escaping by means of a key, secured for her by confederates, and found freedom.

In this chapter she gives BOSTON AMERICAN readers her opinion of conditions at the Taunton Asylum, and answers, so far as she is able, the oft repeated question, "Is Dr. John P. Brown the actual superintendent of the asylum, or is Dr. Goss the real head of the institution?"

By Grace Evelyn Hathorne Darby.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY AMERICAN-JOURNAL-EXAMINER.

COULD not be at the Taunton Insane Asylum as an inmate for five years without getting my opinion as to how things are run there, of course. I suppose no other inmate has his or her ideas, too, and some of them are pretty crazy ones.

In many ways the Taunton Insane Asylum is a well-constructed place. It is in a pretty location, and the air is good and the water. I guess it is healthy enough.

I have already told the BOSTON AMERICAN readers about the attendants and the way some of the inmates are treated. I have told of my own experience of the time they threw me down and pulled a tooth that the dentist said could be crowned, and of their putting me in a dark cell with nothing to eat because I objected to too much work, and of the woman I saw pulled around a ward by a sheet about her head.

I have been told that Dr. Goss does not allow any abuse of patients. If he knows it, and I know of one case where a patient was abused, and Dr. Goss had the attendants that did the abusing right away, but there is a lot going on all the time that he doesn't know anything about.

Trouble About Getting Enough to Eat.

The times I was abused it was ordered by Mrs. Dr. Abbott. She is the head of the Women's Department, and she isn't as particular as Dr. Goss. I was told that one of the women in authority ordered the woman dragged about by the head, which I saw.

Everybody says Dr. Goss is overworked. I don't know him very well, but nearly everybody seems to think he is in a pretty fair sort of man. Usually he is quite pleasant to the patients, and he is liked by a good many inmates.

He has thirteen wards to look after—all the work he ought to have and all Dr. Brown's work, and other things to do, and he is very busy. I wonder that some of the attendants do things they ought not to, and that there is trouble about getting enough to eat and all that. If there was a superintendent, Dr. Goss wouldn't have to work so hard. A superintendent that could attend to his work, I mean.

I have seen in the papers about Dr. Brown not appearing in the wards of the asylum for months. That is true. I don't think Dr. Brown has been in Ward 9 for months. I am guessing at the time, but it is a long time.

When before the time was a long time. We never saw much of him. Once in a while we would see him for a day or so, going around, and then we wouldn't see him any more. We would ask the attendants where he was, and they would say, "Oh, he's gone to bed again."

None of us know what is the matter with him, and none of the attendants either. He is sick with something that keeps him in bed most all the time.

Dr. Brown Gruff and Cross to Her.

He is a very old man—over seventy, I guess—and I suppose he has been there a great many years. Dr. Goss is a young man and a hard worker—everybody could see that—but, of course, it isn't to be expected he could do men's work and do it all as well as he would. His own life he had nothing to do to her him.

It must be two or three years since I had a word of talk with Dr. Brown. I must ask Dr. Goss if he has seen him since. I don't know him very well, even when I saw Dr. Brown it was no use to ask him. We all know that Dr. Goss was the man that was really in charge of things.

The last time I talked with Dr. Brown he was very gruff and cross with me. He never seemed to like me any more.

Most of the attendants in the asylum are pretty good people. Some of them are harsh and rough, and some are very kind. I have seen some have heard of lots of cases, but I don't want to talk of any that I haven't seen myself.

I have heard that there was dishonesty in some places—about the purchase of food and things—but it is only hearsay. I have never heard about an opportunity to really learn anything about that, so I can't talk about it.

I don't know whether Taunton is better or worse than other asylums, because I have never been in any other real insane asylum, but I do know it is bad enough.

To be confined in the Taunton Insane Asylum is worse than to be dead.

To Be Continued in the Boston American Tomorrow.

INQUIRY TO BE FAIR

SAYS CHAMBERLAIN

"We shall welcome evidence that will help us in our investigation from anyone. We are not considering the investigation in any unfair and impartial manner as we have been. It is in progress now. When it is over the public shall have all the facts."

Joseph F. Chamberlain of Boston, trustee of the Taunton Insane Asylum, has been asked by the trustees how the investigation into the conditions at the Taunton Asylum, brought about by the escape of Grace Darby and the revelations concerning her life, should be conducted.

Chamberlain said today in the hospital, where he has been since his escape from the asylum, that he would like to see the investigation conducted in a fair and impartial manner. He said that he would like to see the investigation conducted in a fair and impartial manner, and that he would like to see the investigation conducted in a fair and impartial manner.

It was stated today, by one of those

COLE EXPLAINS WHY SKYRRETT RESOLVE GOT ADVERSE REPORT.

Taking the attitude that it is the duty of the Governor and Council to inquire into the conditions in Massachusetts in the case of the Taunton Insane Asylum, the Legislature today accepted the adverse report on Representative Skyrrett's investigation bill.

"I should not be necessary for the House to suggest to the Governor and Council that such an investigation is made. If there are wrongful conditions in the conduct of the Insane Asylum at Taunton, it is the duty of the Governor and Council to investigate them. That they have abundant power to do."

Representative John N. Cole, in charge of the report of the committee on rules, recommended the bill, and explained the reasons for the committee's recommendation.

"I am not at all surprised at the report, killing the bill, by Mr. Skyrrett. I am not at all surprised at the report, killing the bill, by Mr. Skyrrett. I am not at all surprised at the report, killing the bill, by Mr. Skyrrett."

"I realize that it is late in the session to introduce a resolve of this kind. However, I believe it is necessary to do so."

"I have received letters from many people who are interested in the conditions at the Taunton Insane Asylum. I have received letters from many people who are interested in the conditions at the Taunton Insane Asylum."

CORNELL'S WORK PLEASES COURTNEY

Specie to the Boston American.
ITHACA, May 24.—Another shock was given to the Cornell second year team as a result of the illness of Stro C. C. Adams, A. C. P. Cox, '08, who has been stroking a first freshman eight, in the King of the Hill race won by Adams' position Monday.

Although Cox is a freshman, he pulls powerful oar and had considerable experience in the Cornell regatta. Whether this change will be permanent is not known. Adams was somewhat improved today, and it was reported at a later hour that there is a chance that he may enter the race.

The varsity eight that will row against Harvard Saturday was given another trial today, and the results of the combinations. Coach Courtney, of course, thinking and to the lack of fresh air and full participation in the decisions that will make much progress in healing our attention.

The first principle of repentance is the recognition of sin. Man only recognizes his sinfulness when he is made aware of his sinfulness. Man must repent himself for his companionship because he is a sinner. He must repent the sinners which this poor sinner has caused him to be a sinner. He must repent the sinners which this poor sinner has caused him to be a sinner. He must repent the sinners which this poor sinner has caused him to be a sinner.

But there is more, if not escape from the sinners which this poor sinner has caused him to be a sinner. He must repent the sinners which this poor sinner has caused him to be a sinner. He must repent the sinners which this poor sinner has caused him to be a sinner.

A Dainty Corset-Cover

No. 2712—New designs in underwear are always welcome, and the simple new neck-sleeve general approval. The corset-cover here shows it in two tones, with shoulder and underarm straps. The fullest at the upper edge is designed in tiny tucks.

A black and white line drawing of a woman from the chest up, facing forward. She is wearing a corset cover with a high, ruffled collar and thin shoulder straps. Her hair is styled in an updo with a large flower accessory on the left side. To her right, there is a small illustration of a corset with a lace-trimmed bodice and a long, thin strap.
